The Daintifyt Years

Causeway Museum Service

2 January – 28 February

The Daintifyt Years explores the history of Limavady's Daintifyt Brassiere Company, which opened in 1953, producing the iconic English Rose collection. The exhibition highlights both factory life and its vibrant social culture, including the Northgate Ladies choirs, the Miss Daintifyt beauty competitions, service awards, football teams, and the famous Thatch and Heaney darts teams.

Holocaust Memorial Day 2026

Causeway Museum Service in partnership with Good Relations

26 January – 21 March

This Holocaust exhibition remembers the millions of people who were murdered under Nazi persecution and more recent persecutions in places such as Cambodia, Rwanda and Darfur. Holocaust Memorial Day on 27th January marks the anniversary of the liberation of Auschwitz-Birkenau.

This activity has received financial support from The Executive Office through Causeway Coast & Glens Borough Council's Good Relations Programme.

Lovely venue. Our first time there. We will be back!"

Somewhere

Karl Hagan

5 January - 7 February

LAUNCH including artist tour | Saturday 10 January | 1pm | All welcome

Karl Hagan's paintings combine image and abstraction, using photography and digital collage to create layered, thought-provoking compositions. Featuring fragmented forms and distorted figures, his work explores memory, the subconscious, and the ephemeral nature of human experience, inviting viewers to uncover the hidden narratives and ambiguity within each piece.

This Land Was Made For You and Me

Steinbeck Dustbowl Photography

Exhibition

14 February – 21 March

LAUNCH | Saturday 14 February |

12noon | All welcome

The Steinbeck Festival's annual Dust Bowl Photography Competition showcases twenty selected entries that imaginatively interpret this year's theme, 'This Land Was Made For You and Me'. Open for submissions in Autumn 2025, the exhibition highlights the creativity and perspective of participating photographers.

Steinbeck Festival Children's Book Covers

14 February – 21 March

LAUNCH | Saturday 21 February

12noon | All welcome

This popular annual exhibition features book covers designed by local primary school pupils for a selected choice of John Steinbeck's works. The competition introduces children to the Pulitzer Prize-winning author's connection to the area, encourages creativity, and challenges them to visually interpret the book titles. The resulting exhibition is full of imagination and colour, guaranteed to make you smile!

Wonderings

Sarah Wren Wilson

4 April – 29 May

LAUNCH | Saturday 4 April | 1pm | All welcome

Wonderings invites viewers into a space where perception, memory, and imagination meet. Featuring recent paintings and sculptural forms by Sarah Wren Wilson, the exhibition explores landscapes - real and imagined - as portals to emotional and psychological states. Drawing on Jungian ideas, Wilson reveals the dialogue between conscious intention and the unconscious, filtering place and time through personal perception. Grids, recurring motifs, and "guilty lines" map memory and tension, while natural materials highlight her sculptural sensibility. Through abstraction, the works resist fixed meaning, instead offering liminal spaces where inner and outer worlds reflect one another and invite contemplative engagement.

Events

Anthology | Frances Black

Saturday 3 January | 8pm (Doors 7.30pm) | Tickets £27.50 |

Unreserved tiered seating with limited bar

We are delighted to welcome Frances Black back to the stage, following her first unforgettable concert with us in 2012. One of Ireland's most acclaimed singers, Frances is celebrated for her pure, soulful voice, commanding stage presence, and deeply honest lyrics.

From her chart-topping debut album Talk to Me to acclaimed albums including The Sky Road and How High the Moon, her music explores love, loss, and personal growth, resonating with audiences worldwide. Beyond her artistry, Frances is a passionate advocate for mental health and addiction recovery. Don't miss this rare opportunity to experience a true Irish music icon live in our intimate Danny Boy auditorium.
